

After launching its new website in October of 2002, American Telesis received the “Golden Web Award” from the IAWMD (International Association of Web Masters and Designers). The award recognizes American Telesis as having achieved excellence in web design for overall functionality, appearance, content and organization of its web site.